Ambulante Film Festival postpones its fifteenth edition

- New dates for the Documentary Tour will be announced soon.

Mexico City, March 13th, 2020— Ambulante Film Festival 2020, that was to take place from March 19 to May 28, postpones its program and activities until further notice; this is to contribute to decrease the spread and impact of the COVID-19 virus in Mexico. Given the geographical reach of the festival in eight states of the country and in over 130 venues, with several public open-air screenings, we deem prudent to suspend all of our activities in order not to expose our audience, volunteers, staff, and national and international guests. Ambulante stands in solidarity with all the people that have been affected by the pandemic of the COVID-19 virus.

We regret having to postpone the celebration of our fifteenth edition, and thank you for your patience and support. We hope to be able to share news about the festival shortly.

Ambulante is an organization devoted to supporting and promoting documentary film as a tool for social and cultural change. Founded in Mexico in 2005 by Gael García Bernal, Diego Luna and Elena Fortes, and currently directed by Paulina Suárez, the organization brings documentary films to places with low screening and training offer in this genre, in order to promote a multi-stakeholder dialogue and the reflection on relevant issues.

Ambulante Film Festival is the largest documentary film festival in Mexico and a unique exhibition space in the world. Each year, it tours Mexican states for over two months with an international exhibit that includes around a hundred titles, over a hundred guests, and one hundred and fifty venues. The festival is non-competitive and offers more than 70% of its programming for free.
